Issued by	The BPExchOnline desk via WhatsApp — typically in about 2 minutes.

Security rule	The desk never asks for your password, wallet PIN or OTP.

1. What an account / ID actually is

A BPExch “account” and a BPExch “ID” are one thing with two names. There is no separate ID card, app login and web login: the desk issues you one username and one starter password, and that single pair opens the real BPExch login page, the Android app and the mobile web page. If a site asks you to “register”, pick a plan, or pay to “create an ID”, it is not describing the real platform. Real BPExch accounts are dealer-issued only — there is no public self-signup form, no SMS OTP step and no CNIC upload in the genuine flow.

That single fact protects you twice. First, it tells you a clone or middleman is involved whenever you see a sign-up form with email verification. Second, it tells you who can help you later: the desk that issued the account is the desk that can reset its password, confirm its status and process its payouts — free of charge.

2. The 5 opening steps

1. Message the desk on WhatsApp. Use the number published on BPExchOnline.com. Say you want a BPExch account and give your city. No payment is made at this stage.
2. Choose your username (see Section 3) and tell the desk. Keep it short, private and easy to type without mistakes.
3. Receive your username and starter password. A normal opening takes about 2 minutes once the desk replies. Save the pair in your phone’s notes or password manager — not in a public screenshot.
4. Run the zero-balance login test (Section 4) before sending any money. Confirm you can sign in, see a Rs 0 balance and open the markets list.
5. Change the starter password, then fund. Set your own password first (Section 5), and only then make your first deposit — minimum Rs 500 via Easypaisa, JazzCash or bank (IBFT / Raast).

If any step is skipped — especially the login test — stop and finish it before funding. Every later problem (wrong account, clone page, mistyped username) is cheaper to fix at Rs 0 than after a deposit.

3. Choosing a username

- Use 6–14 characters: lowercase letters and numbers type cleanly on every phone keyboard.
- Do not use your full name, mobile number, CNIC number or date of birth — your username is visible in account screenshots and bet history.
- Avoid look-alike characters together (0/O, 1/l) — they cause most first-login failures.
- Pick something you will still remember in six months. You cannot rename an account; a new username means a new account.
- Tell the desk the exact spelling once, then copy-paste it back from their reply to confirm there is no typo before the account is created.

4. The zero-balance login test

Before any deposit, sign in with a Rs 0 balance and check four things in order: (1) the page is titled “BpExch Login” and shows only two fields — username and password; (2) your username is accepted and you land on the account home screen, not an error page; (3) the balance reads Rs 0 and the currency is PKR; (4) you can open one market (for example a PSL or cricket market) and see back and lay prices. If all four pass, the account, the address and your password are all correct. Take a screenshot of the logged-in home screen with the balance hidden if you need a record — never screenshot the password field.

If the test fails, do not fund and do not retry endlessly. Follow the failure order in the Login Help & Safety Guide: check the current address first, then the username, then the password. About 15 minutes of repeated wrong passwords can lock the account temporarily — waiting is faster than guessing.

5. Changing the starter password

1. Sign in with the starter password the desk sent you.
2. Open the account / profile menu and choose Change Password (wording varies slightly by layout).
3. Enter the starter password once as the current password, then your new password twice.
4. Use at least 10 characters mixing letters and numbers. Never reuse your Easypaisa, JazzCash or email password.
5. Sign out and sign back in with the new password to prove it works, before you deposit.

Password resets are always free. If you forget your new password, the desk resets it after confirming your username — anyone charging an “unlock fee” or “reset fee” is running a scam (see the Login Help & Safety Guide).

6. First-week checklist

- Day 1: login test passed, password changed, username and desk WhatsApp number saved.
- First deposit: start at or near the Rs 500 minimum until you have seen one full deposit credit and one market settle.
- Learn the statement: find the statement / account history view and identify deposit, bet, settlement and commission lines before staking larger amounts.
- Make one small withdrawal (minimum Rs 1,000 balance required) in week one so you know the payout route and timing before you need money urgently.
- Save the current login address from the desk each time it rotates; delete old bookmarks that no longer open the genuine page.

- Set a weekly staking limit for yourself in writing. The exchange settles fast — your budget rule has to be set before the match, not during it.

7. What the desk never asks

The genuine desk will never ask for: your account password, your Easypaisa or JazzCash PIN, any OTP / verification code sent to your phone, remote-access access to your phone (AnyDesk, TeamViewer), or payment to a personal wallet different from the deposit details you were given for that transaction. It will ask for your username, your transaction ID (TID) for a deposit query, and a description or screenshot of an error message with the password cropped out. If a conversation asks for anything in the first list, end it and contact the desk through the number on BPExchOnline.com.
