The BPExch Pakistan Playbook

The complete desk guide: the exchange, back & lay, accounts, payments, login safety and city desks — in one file.

At a glance — verified November 2026

Cost	Accounts / IDs are free. No opening fee, ever.
Issued by	The BPExchOnline desk via WhatsApp — typically in about 2 minutes.
Minimums	Deposit Rs 500 · Withdrawal Rs 1,000.
Rails	Easypaisa, JazzCash, bank transfer (IBFT / Raast).
Payouts	To the same wallet you funded from. Same-day norm; measured median wallet payout 38 minutes.
Security rule	The desk never asks for your password, wallet PIN or OTP.

1. What the exchange is

BPExch is a betting exchange, not a bookmaker. On a bookmaker site you bet against the house at prices the house sets. On an exchange you bet against other punters: one person backs an outcome (bets it happens) and another lays it (bets it does not), and the exchange matches them and charges a small commission on net winnings in that market only. That structure is why exchange prices are usually keener, why you can trade out of a position before an event finishes, and why “liquidity” — money waiting on both sides — matters more than any tip. Accounts are desk-issued and free: there is no public signup, the desk creates your username and starter password via WhatsApp in about 2 minutes, and you test the login at zero balance before funding (minimum deposit Rs 500).

2. Back & lay — with a worked PSL example

Back = bet it happens. Your profit if you are right is stake × (odds – 1); you lose your stake if you are wrong. Lay = bet it does not happen — you act as the bookmaker for that bet. If the outcome does not happen you win the backer’s stake; if it does happen you pay lay liability = stake × (odds – 1). Liability, not the stake figure in the lay box, is the amount actually at risk when you lay. Confusing the two is the most expensive beginner mistake on any exchange.

Worked example — PSL, Lahore Qalandars vs Karachi Kings

1. Back first. Before the toss you back Lahore Qalandars with Rs 1,000 at 2.14. If Lahore win, profit = 1,000 × (2.14 – 1) = Rs 1,140. If they lose, you lose Rs 1,000.
2. The price drifts in your favour. Lahore start fast and their price shortens to 1.60. Your back bet is now valuable — the market says Lahore are more likely to win than when you backed them.
3. Lay to trade out. You lay Lahore at 1.60 to lock in a position either way. A standard green-up lay stake is: (back stake × back odds) ÷ lay odds = (1,000 × 2.14) ÷ 1.60 = Rs 1,337.50. Your lay liability = 1,337.50 × (1.60 – 1) = Rs 802.50, which is held from your balance while the lay is open.

4 Result if Lahore win: back profit Rs 1,140 minus lay liability paid Rs 802.50 = +Rs 337.50 before commission. Result if Lahore lose: you lose the Rs 1,000 back stake but win the backer's Rs 1,337.50 lay stake = +Rs 337.50 before commission. Same profit either way — that locked figure is called being "green" on both sides.

5 Commission. Exchange commission is charged on net winnings in that market only — here, on the Rs 337.50 market profit, not on your stakes and not per bet. If a market nets to a loss, there is no commission on that market. Check your statement after settlement to see the exact commission line for the rate applied to your account.

Two warnings from the same example. First, trading out only works while the market is liquid and open — a wicket or a suspension can move or freeze the price before your lay matches, and an unmatched lay locks in nothing. Second, never lay with money you cannot cover: the liability figure, Rs 802.50 here, must be in your available balance or the bet will not be placed in full.

3. Account types & floats

Account type	Who it is for	Float (not a fee)
User	Punters. Back and lay, deposit and withdraw via their dealer / desk.	— (funded by your own deposits, min. Rs 500)
Dealer	Issues user accounts, takes deposits, pays withdrawals locally.	Rs 25,000
Master	Manages a network of dealers under them.	Rs 100,000
Super master	Top tier; manages masters and large dealer networks.	Rs 500,000

Read the float correctly: a float is working balance held to service the tier below — it funds payouts and account credits — it is not a purchase price, licence fee or joining charge paid away. Most readers of this playbook need only a free user account. Talk to the desk before pursuing a dealer tier: territory, existing networks and verification decide availability, not the float alone.

4. Payments summary

- Rails: Easypaisa, JazzCash, bank via IBFT / Raast. Minimum deposit Rs 500; minimum withdrawal Rs 1,000.
- Deposits: confirm today's receiving details, send, then message username + TID + amount + method in one WhatsApp message. No TID, no fast trace.
- Withdrawals return to the same wallet / account you funded from — an anti-fraud rule that also proves ownership. Fund from the wallet you want payouts in.
- Timings: same-day norm; measured median wallet payout 38 minutes. PSL finals and Pakistan match nights run slower for everyone — withdraw early if you need cash that evening.
- Missing deposit? Do not resend. Send the TID first with the receipt; the three usual causes are an old receiving number, a TID never sent or sent wrong, and a panic second transfer.
- The desk never asks for your password, wallet PIN or OTP, and payouts / resets carry no release or unlock fee.

5. Login safety summary

The genuine page is titled “BpExch Login”, shows two fields only (username + password), and lives at an address that rotates — get it from the desk, not from ads or channels. Before typing anything, run the three-looks check: title, two-field form, trusted source; all three must pass. Sign-in failures are fixed in order — address, username, password, wait out a ~15-minute lock, then ask the desk to check status — and password resets are free via WhatsApp. The Android app is an APK supplied by the desk (not on Google Play); iPhone uses mobile web. The two charges that never exist are the “unlock fee” and the “migration fee”: anyone demanding either is running a scam, however official they sound.

6. City desks

The desk serves punters across Pakistan on WhatsApp, with local dealer coverage in: Karachi, Lahore, Islamabad, Rawalpindi, Faisalabad, Multan, Peshawar, Quetta, Gujranwala, Hyderabad, Sialkot, Sargodha, Bahawalpur, Sukkur and Larkana. Mention your city when you first message — local coverage affects how fast a cash-adjacent query or a dealer-tier conversation can be handled, while account opening, deposits by wallet / bank, login help and payouts run through the same central desk process described in this playbook wherever you are.

7. Responsible play — brief and factual

Betting exchanges settle quickly and prices move during play; only stake money you can afford to lose, set a fixed budget before a match rather than chasing losses in-play, and treat any single market — including a traded “green” position — as capable of costing you your full stake or liability until it is matched and settled. Take breaks on long match days, and stop for the day when your pre-set limit is reached. This guide explains how the platform works; it is not financial advice and contains no tips or predictions.

8. Final checklist

- Account: issued free by the desk on WhatsApp (~2 minutes); username saved; starter password changed; zero-balance login test passed before funding.
- Safety: three-looks check passed; current address taken from the desk; password, PIN and OTP never shared with anyone.
- Money in: today’s details confirmed; Rs 500+ sent from your own wallet; TID + username sent in one message; credit confirmed before betting.
- Trading: back / lay and liability understood; liability covered by available balance; commission expected on net market winnings only.
- Money out: Rs 1,000+ settled balance; payout requested to the funding wallet; match-night delays allowed for; payout TID kept until money reflects.
- Help: when stuck, send username + exact error words + what you tried — never your password.
